Lee Eastman brings more than three decades of executive management, financial oversight, information technology, and corporate governance experience to his service on the StillWaters Residential Association (SWRA) Board of Directors. He has served as Board President since March 2025 and was also a member of the Architectural Review Committee.

Born in Portland, Maine, and raised primarily in Mobile, Alabama, Lee grew up in a military and civil service family, living in various parts of the country. He attended the University of West Alabama and served ten years in the United States Air Force as a computer specialist. Following his military service, he became a co-owner of a building supply, concrete, and construction business.

In 1988, Lee moved to Auburn, Alabama, to become Executive Director of the Auburn Housing Authority. He subsequently served as Chief Executive Officer of the Auburn, LaFayette, and Roanoke Housing Authorities until his retirement in 2015.

During his professional career, Lee served as President of both the Alabama Association of Public Housing Authority Directors and the Alabama Association of Housing and Redevelopment Authorities. He also served for many years on the boards of both organizations.

At the national level, Lee served on the Board of Directors of the Housing Authority Insurance Group (HAI), a member-owned captive insurance organization providing insurance and risk management services to public housing authorities nationwide. During his tenure, he chaired the Learning Technologies and Information Technology Committees. He was also an active member of the National Association of Corporate Directors (NACD) and held a corporate board certification.

Having grown up near the water in Mobile, Lee was drawn to the beauty and tranquility of Lake Martin. In 1994, he made StillWaters his home, initially residing at Villas on the Harbor before moving to his current residence in 2012.

A StillWaters resident for more than 32 years, Lee has a deep appreciation for the community and a strong commitment to preserving its character, safety, financial stability, and quality of life. As SWRA Board President, he emphasizes responsible financial management, transparency, effective governance, infrastructure maintenance, modernization of administrative systems, and long-range planning to protect the community's future.

Lee has two children and a granddaughter, all living locally. He is an active member of the Church of the Living Waters and also attends Church of the Highlands. His personal interests include science, computers, emerging technology, and spending time with his family.

Lee considers StillWaters more than simply a place to live. It is his home and a community he deeply values. He believes that serving on the Board is both a responsibility and an opportunity to help preserve and improve StillWaters for current residents and future generations.
